

Campaigns Contact

"I am extremely honoured to be a volunteer for the MND Association. The most rewarding thing is knowing that I have helped people to access the services, equipment and support they need." Jo-Ann, Volunteer

What's involved?

- Actively promote our central campaigns and encourage your members to take action locally
- Inform your members of the latest campaigning news and activities
- Talk to politicians and decision makers about what MND is and why it is important that people with the disease have access to high quality health and care services
- Work with regional staff to identify issues and gather evidence for local campaigns
- Be part of the online MND Campaign Network and encourage others to join

This role will suit me if I:

- Have an interest in learning and improving my campaigning skills
- Have the desire to make a positive difference for people with MND, their carers and families
- Have good communication and networking skills
- Able to work on my own initiative
- Am computer literate and have access to email/the internet

What's in it for me?

- Become part of a friendly and dedicated team
- Develop your campaigning skills, enhance your networking and organising skills
- Get access to a range of workshops and events including an annual Campaigns Contact training and a networking weekend and get support from regional and national staff

How flexible is the role?

The Branch/Group Campaigns Contact will need to work from home for approximately 2 hours a week. Tasks will be tailored depending on individual skills, experience and the availability of the volunteer.

What sort of training/induction will I receive before starting?

You'll be inducted into the role and informed about the Association. As part of this, you will receive e-learning, face-to-face training and mentoring. The training programme will also include experiential and reflective learning.
